

EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Financial Assistance While You Prepare for Work

Finding a job is a shared responsibility. You are prepared to invest in you — if you are prepared to invest in yourself. Financial assistance may be available for EI eligible clients, if you can demonstrate that you need and that it will help you get back to work.

Your Return-to-Work Action Plan

If you need help, you will need to prepare a personal Return-to-Work Action Plan. Your plan might draw upon a number of employment tools and resources available in your community. For example, it might include getting help practising job interviews, or taking a course to develop new job skills.

What Assistance is Available?

Your plan will require your personal commitment to follow through and make it work. You are expected to pay at least part of the costs whenever possible. If you are unable to pay for everything, Human Resources Development Canada (HRDC) may be able to help pay for some costs, such as course fees, additional transportation costs or living expenses.

How Much Could I Receive?

The amount of assistance available depends on your individual needs and circumstances, and is negotiated with you taking these circumstances into account. There is no standard "allowance" that is the same for everyone. You need to prepare a budget that shows:

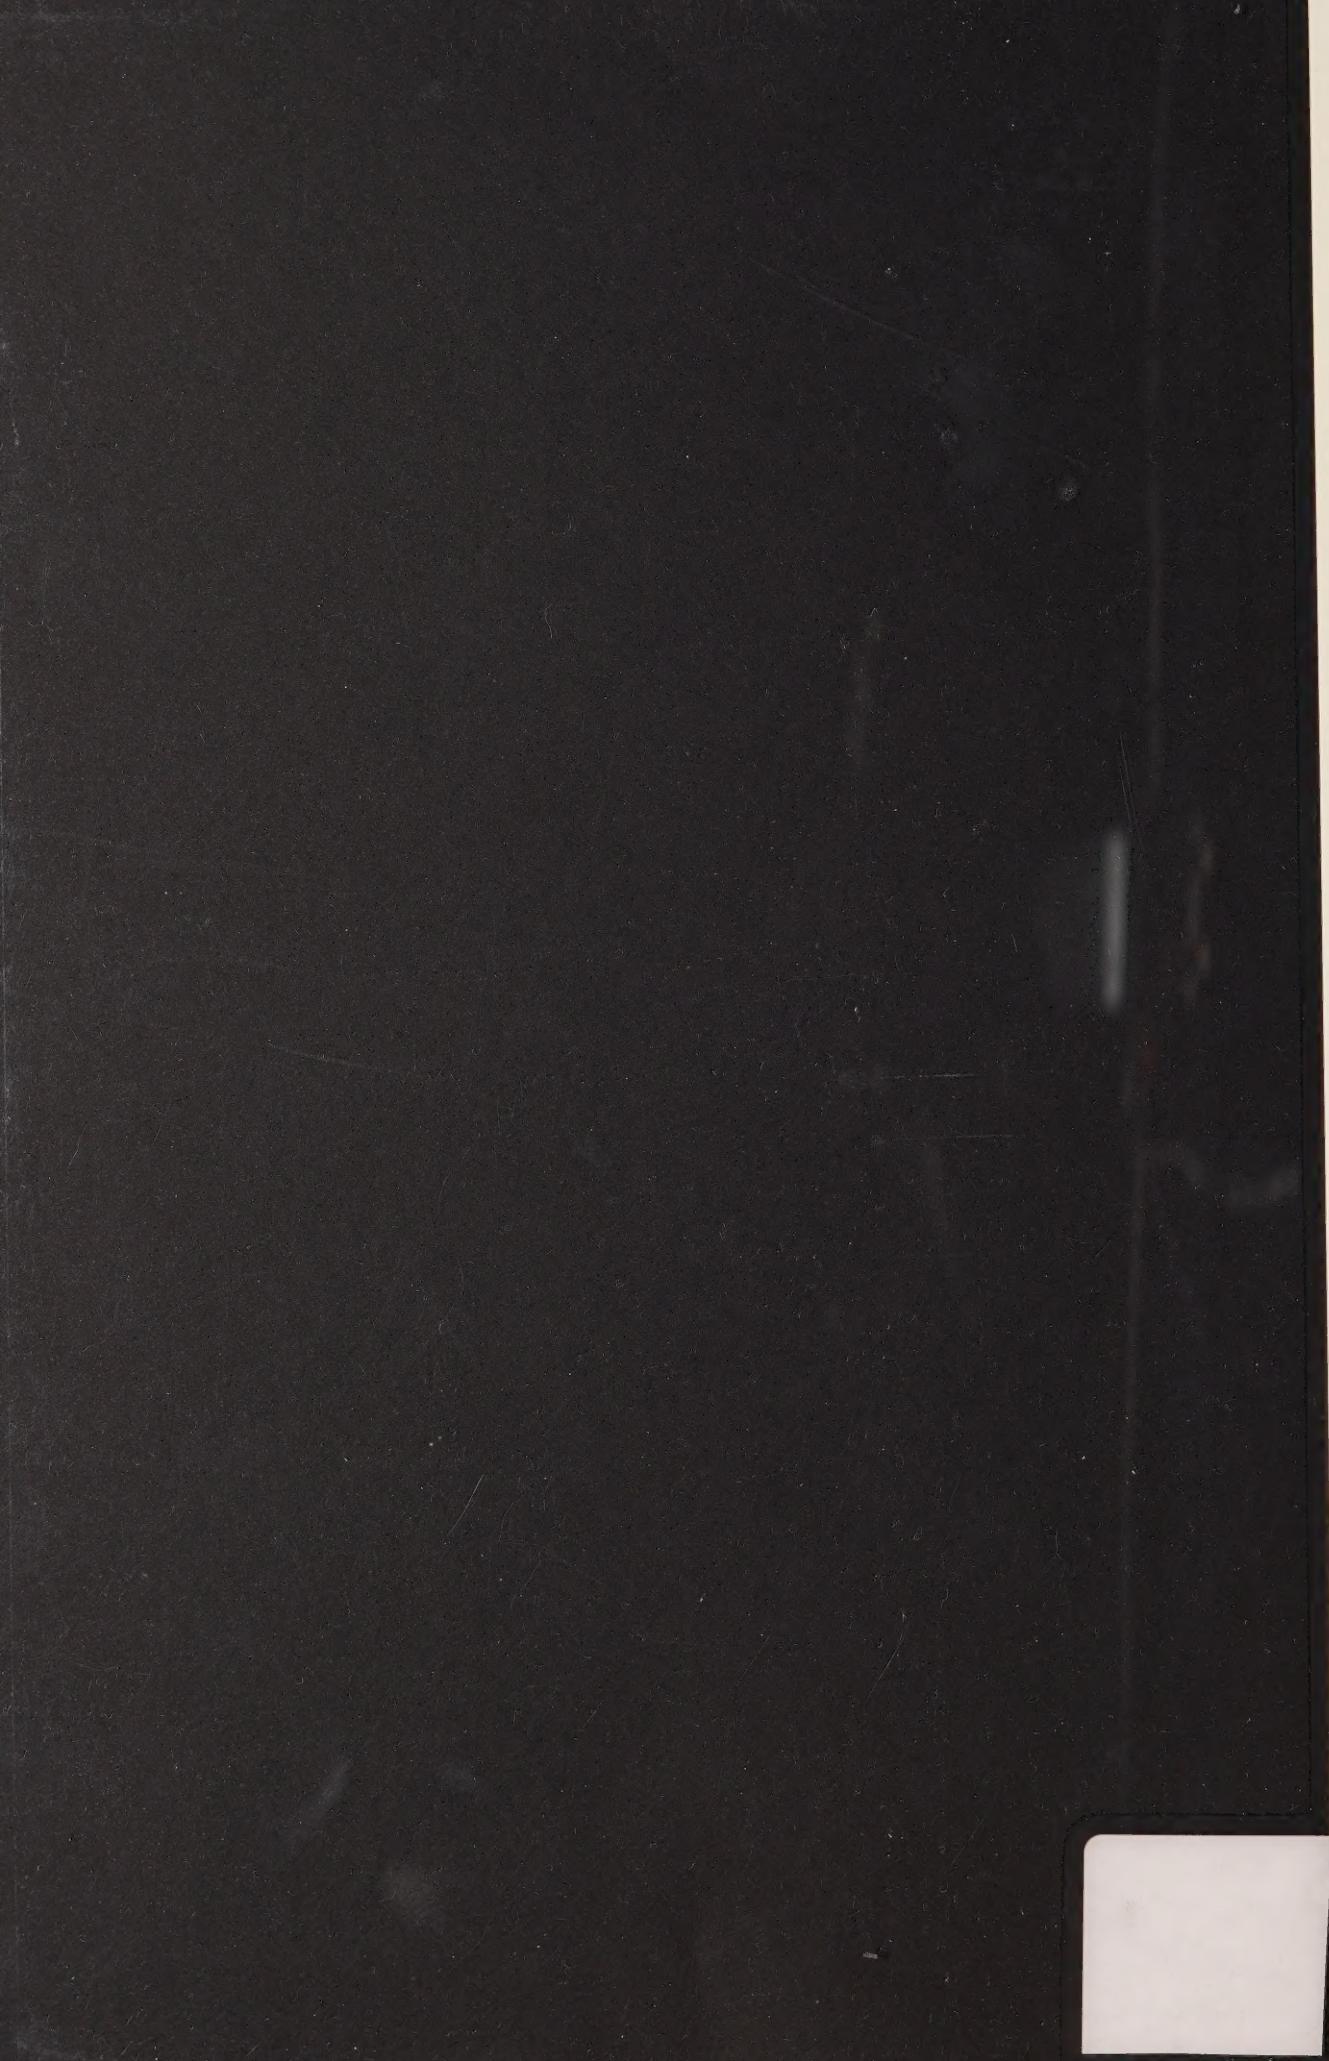

- how much it will cost you to complete your Action Plan;
- how much you can afford to pay yourself; and
- how much extra you need to make up the difference.

Once you have this information, an advisor at your local Human Resource Centre of Canada (formerly called Canada Employment Centre) or an HRDC partner will help determine the exact amount of financial assistance available to you in your individual circumstances.

CA1
HR
-Z062

Développement des ressources humaines Canada

Canada

EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

CAT!
HR
Z062

Financial Assistance While You Prepare for Work

Finding a job is a shared responsibility. We are prepared to invest in you — if you are prepared to invest in yourself. Financial assistance may be available for EI eligible clients, if you can demonstrate that you need it and that it will help you get back to work.

Your Return-to-Work Action Plan

If you need help, you will need to prepare a personal Return-to-Work Action Plan. Your plan might draw upon a number of employment tools and resources available in your community. For example, it might include getting help practising job interviews, or taking a course to develop new job skills.

What Assistance is Available?

Your plan will require your personal commitment to follow through and make it work. You are expected to pay at least part of the costs whenever possible. If you are unable to pay for everything, Human Resources Development Canada (HRDC) may be able to help pay for some costs, such as course fees, additional transportation costs or living expenses.

How Much Could I Receive?

The amount of assistance available depends on your individual needs and circumstances, and is negotiated with you taking these circumstances into account. There is no standard "allowance" that is the same for everyone. You need to prepare a budget that shows:

- how much it will cost you to complete your Action Plan;
- how much you can afford to pay yourself; and
- how much extra you need to make up the difference.

Once you have this information, an advisor at your local Human Resource Centre of Canada (formerly called Canada Employment Centre) or an HRDC partner will help determine the exact amount of financial assistance available to you in your individual circumstances.

Human Resources
Development Canada

Développement des
ressources humaines Canada

Canada

For More Information

Your Human Resource Centre of Canada (HRCC) has a variety of self-help tools and publications to help you develop an Action Plan and determine your financial requirements. If you can't find what you need, or if you want more information, speak to an HRCC advisor.

Additional copies of this publication or alternate formats can be obtained from:

Public Enquiries Centre
Communications Branch
Human Resources Development Canada
Ottawa-Hull K1A 0J9
Fax: (819) 953-7260

Additional information is available through the Internet at: <http://www.hrdc-drhc.gc.ca>

©Minister of Public Works and Government Services Canada 1996
Cat. No. LU2-158/1-1996
ISBN: 0-662-62692-3

Renewable energy

Dès que vous aurez ces renseignements, le conseiller du CRHC vous aidera à fixer le montant exact de l'aide financière qu'il vous est offerte, complète tenue de votre situation personnelle.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2022 with funding from University of Toronto

<https://archive.org/details/31761115514135>

3 1761 11551413 5